

Table of Contents

Introduction . . . . .	7
Chapter 1
The Crisis of Liberal Democracy and “New Hobbesianism” . . . . .	14
Chapter 2
“Theological-Political Problem” and Hobbes’s Solution . . . . .	20
In the beginning, there was Chaos! . . . . .	21
Modern natural right and vanity-fear antithesis . . . . .	24
Chapter 3
Hobbes and His Social-Historical Context . . . . .	29
Ontology of liberal society and Hobbes’s assumption of “possessive individualism” . . . . .	30
Chapter 4
Market, Power, Possession. Between Strauss and Macpherson . . . . .	40
Conceptual and substantial affinity, methodological disparity? . . . . .	40
Chapter 5
Implications: Sovereignty, Human Rights, Political Theology . . . . .	47
Conclusion:
Interpreting Hobbes’s “Power Narrative”. Intertextual Analysis . . . . .	61
References . . . . .	76
Index . . . . .	87